are said to have occurred at Southampton, at least ore of them having been fatal in thirty-six cases are said to have occurred in different parts of the town, and it is to be suponosed, therefore that they were unconnected with each have been inhabitants of the town, so that the cases cannot be explained away by supposing that the disease had been contracted in the Mediterranean, and had only developed itself

after the arrival of its victims on English

they may prove to be the first two droys of a

LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY, MONDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1865

(From the Toulonnais, September 25.1)

We have already approved the fires hit in the streets every evening during the last week, and we have above all born in mind the moral aspect of those manifestations, encouraged as they are by the municipal authorities. Those fires are a distraction to the mind, and serve to strengthen the courage of the inhabitants. It would, tesides, appear that the epidemic of cholera at Constantinople suddenly ceased after the vast configration which destroyed two-hirds of that city. The sulntary effect of the fames was, therefore, shown on a large scale, and that is a sufficient encouragement to the administration of the lown to persevere in those measures. They are, however, badty curled out, and those persons who hight up the fires, supposing that it is the smake which purifies the air, throw water, wetted fuel, or old shees on the burning piles, with the idea of creating as much smoke as possible. The result is, that the narrow streets are filled with a heavy and suffocating atmosphere, which penerals a supposing the consequence. The population has, moreover, spontaneously organized kind of rejoicing, which has become intelerable to persons who require rest, and to the sick at sunset crackers are let off in the streets in every direction. That noisy display of fire works continues and in odd colock in the evening and the detonations awake enddenly those persons who are worn out with fatigue, and an endeavoring to repair by steep the effects of it works continues until 10 o'clock in the evening and the detonations awake enddenly those persons who are worn out with fatigue, and arendeavoring to repair by sleep the effects of laborious day, and especially the sick, for whom quiet and repose are so necessary.

the various occases of neuth, these constitution at advisers, and their executive officers. Second, the masses of the people, especially those of the inboring classes. The co-operation of both these parties is indispensable. By intelligent combined action all epidemic diseases, especially to cholera, can be very much controlled, and their navages staved. On the important point of how this is to be accomplished, Dr. Claik made the following important suggestions:

"Shall we, as some distinguished civilians and others have proposed, establish a rigid quanantine? Shall we exclude all vessels and persons and goods from the Mediterranean from our ports? Shall we obstruct the course of trade in its accustomed channels by land and sea? Nc—a thousand times, no! If this were possible—if all these and more were possible—how could it avail to arrest the march of a pestilence that walketh in darkness, and that springs out of the earth by intangible hat noxions exhalations which are wafted to us without any known agencies, on the wings of the wind, over continents and oceans?

But above all, when we consider the nownessible and walketh was not the stablished and walk upone fact that shall shall and was a shall be and walketh that shall and coeans?

the wind, over confidents and oceans?

But above all, when we consider the now established and well proven fact that cholera helither contagious nor infectious, how deadly about do quarantines appear. Let us there fore dismiss all our fears on this point, relieve purselves, and the authorities from the contagination. fore dismiss all our fears on this point, relieve ourselves and the authorities from the annyances and ovils incident to a rigorous quarantine, and apply curselves in the only available but powerful and sufficient remedy to be found in the proper use and application of intelligently directed sanitary measures, and to he coergetic administration, by the boards of health, under the advice of their medial officers, of all the provisions of sanitary law. These duties comprise, in a greative, all the departments nearly comprised internal health, and imply attention to the following points, and are survey: 2 general cleaning recruitons: 3, sewerage: 4, abattors (slaughter ourses) and markets; 5, dram slops and drinkanement houses, streets, and construction of curses water supply, ventilation, vaccination, abile baths, and interment of the dead, and neclal care in case of the presence of epidemic and contagions discusses.

public baths, and interment of the dead, and proble care in case of the presence of epidemic and contrations diseases.

The subject of drain shops and drinking houses, it may be thought, is improperly introduced, but when we sli know that, in addition to the perniculus effects of interaperance, the first at d most nrm rous victims to epidemics are the intemperate, it will appear otherwise. Indeed, if, instead of treating and hopelessly attempting to cure and arrest intemperance and dam-selling as crimes and civil offerses, and amenable only to civil, criminal, or moral laws, we should treat the first as a disease and the scool as a missucce, and dangerous to the public health, and to be abated as such, we should, I am sure, have entered upon the right track; for instead of the prejudices of the people being excited against a sumpturary law, we should, in favor of a sanitary measure, have their entire sympathy and support.

The duties of the people themselves may be unsmed up in short to be—I, to lay aside all unnecessary fears, and to feel that a danger locked full in the face will either be diminished or disappear; 2, to practice personal and household cleanliness; 3, to see that their cellars, drains, and other premises are clean and in order, 4, to avoid overcrowding and to attend to ventilation; 5, to avoid interperance and the habitmal nee of spirituous drinks; 6, to avoid all decayed or unripe finit.

THE PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS TO THE COLORE RACE -The President delivered a very inter esting address on the 10th inst. ostensibly to ored race, and especially to the freed people of this country. couched in the following admirable terms:

The undersigned, citizens of St. Louis, being warmly in favor of the reconstruction policy of President Johnson, and the sentiments expressed in his late speech to delegates from the Southern States, and being forewarmed by the utterances of prominent radical politicians and newspapers that his policy is destined to encounter a formidable opposition, cordially invite all who are resolved to sustain that policy—the leading features of which are the speedy restoration of the Union, of civil liberty, and constitutional rights—to meet them in mass convention, in St. Louis, on the 25 h instant.

The convention thus proposed in Missonri is

He was evidently in earnest. He made as effort to be simple and plain, so that he could be understood. He repeats again and again, so as to impress his meaning upon those to whom be spoke directly as well as indirectly.

The burden of his remarks is that the dec-tiny of the freed people is now in their own bands, and that what that shall be depends upon themselves. He preaches to them an ex-cellent sermon, and his text is Industry and Self-control. The object of the President is to benefit the colored race through social elevtion to be effected by industry, the control of the passions, morality, order, obedience to law thfulness to obligations.

o be of the same character with the one which we suggested in our leading article Friday morning should be held in this State at Frank Toward the close of his speech, if we may so fort sometime next month. The conservation term it, the President broaches the sabject the possibility of the commingling together o ance of rendering a cordial annuous to the wise policy of President Johnson now that the exthe two races in a state of freedom, about which remists are making a heartless warfare noo he has evidently grave doubts. It is "a great him, and they are ready to bury the minor di ferences of the past that they may stan I nnitedred race can be incorporated and mixed with around his Administration. Cannot the Unio the people of the United States to be made a men of Kentneky adopt the same generons and harmonious and permanent ingredient in the patriotic course? The differences between them population." "This is a problem," he continare of less importance now than the differen which have esparated the very men in Missouri line to do so." "Are the digestive powers of who are rallying at present around a commo the American Government sufficient to receive standard. Kentneky should not and must no this element in a raw shape, and digest it and be behind her loyal sister States in the great make it work healthfully upon the system that duty of enetaining the nation's Chief Magishas incorporated it? That is the question to be trate Let us hear from all parts of the State determined." It is indeed the question, or one of the questions, to be met, and it is a great nection, an immense question, whose solution Some of the Republican organs, anxion will have a tremendous influence one way or o have it believed that the people of the South other upon the future of this country as are as disloyal and bitter as they were while the well as upon that of the colored race. The retellion was racing, dwell much poon the fact President understands the negro character well; that Gen. Humphreys was elected Governor and hence the doubts he has, whether Mississicol without having been pardoned the President. Surely this was a matter of the freed people will prove themselves equal to the requirements upon them in order to their great consconence, for, although he had not been pardoned, he had taken the oath of allecontinuance in this country as a part of the giance or ampests and was entitled to the full onely and continuously; whether they onsidered him worthy of pardon, for he made will practice morality and virtue themselves haste to pardon him after the election: and he pect themselves and others; whether, is wouldn't have pardoned any man on earth that a word, they are capable of self-government as portions of a free community. It Mr. Johnson had not known well what he was talking about he deemed unworthy, though elected fifty times The people of Mississippi, in voting for Gen. he never would have raised such questions as umphreys, knew that they were not voting these. If he had belonged to the ranting for a rebel or a disloyal man, but for one who dog matic school of Philanthropists, whose prohad just sworn fidelity to the Federal Governfound ignorance of the questions they dis ment. They expected nothing from him but is usually in the exact ratio to their positive.

trolling idea should not be daguerreotyped upopley-in order to their existence in this country n a state of freedom-that they should govern their "passions," develop their "intellects and apply their "physical powers to the indus rial interests of the country;" and he declares to them that "that is the true process by which this question can be settled.' He directly tells them-what would be non sense and trifling addressed to a company of intelligent white men-"I want them to undersland that, so far as I am concerned, I do not ssume or pretend that I am stronger than the ness and the crudities they ennuciate, he would have grown granditoquent before though, that accomplished, all is accomplished

in any way connected with the whole subject.

He is your best friend who tells you in a proper spirit your faults. The President has exempli fed this rule. He tells the colored people of the country what it is necessary they should fully know and feel, if they can know and feel anything; what it is for their best interests they and show in their conduct. He tells them that the most important part of this liberating bust

nere for them is yet to'come! And so he re-

Merates, as if apprehensive that his grand con.

hould thoroughly and practically under laws or course of nature, or that I am wiser than Providence itself." This is well adapted to disabuse the childish notion of the negro that the President can do anything he pleases, law or no law. In the ourse of this feeling and thoughtful address Mr. Johnson hints that if the continued existence together in peace of the two races in the United States be found incompatible, "Provilence, that works mysteriously but unerring! and certainly, will point out the way and the mode and the manner by which these people are to be separated, and they are to be taken to their land of inheritance and promise, for uch a one is before them. Hence we are mak-

In these sentences, as if forgetting for the noment whom he was speaking to, he addresses the whole country. In alluding to the negro "land of inheritance and promise," he means unmetakably the country whence the negro originally came—Africa. Who knows what Providence may design in regard to that land of hick and appalling darkness in connection with the events that have taken place in this country? May not the negro, sent here to be Chri-tianized, elevated, educated by contawith the Caucasian race and in the broat school of experience, be returned in due time civilized to his native home, to be there used as an instrument in the hands of Providence to reclaim and disenthrall it from the gross horrors to which for centuries upon centuries it has been subjected? Providence indeed works "mysteriously but unerringly and certainly." It is perhaps a noteworthy circumstance, as Ladies' Furs! chowing the madness of some of the extreme pecrophobia people, that they object to this the negroes to habits of morality and industry order and self control' He wouldn't have talked so to white people, say the extremists races' We shall publish the address this ever ing or to-morrow in full.

We published on Saturday a report what was said last Friday in an interview be tween President Johnson and four distinguished rentlemen of South Carolina. No enlightened nd patriotic man can have read the conversation without a feeling of deep gratification. The President eceme rising higher and higher every day. He is strongthening himself in the confidence and regard of the country. He is developing powers and qualities that even the warm-est of his old friends did not suppose him to pocesse. The present occasion is a mighty one, and be is showing himself equal to its vast reconsibilities. Let the political sea welter and dash as it may, not a nerve trembles or falter n the hand that holds the helm. Presiden Johnson exhibits justice and mercy undiluted with weakness. He means to go as far in favor of those lately in rebellion as he possibly can without compromising the Government, but no farther. He is a statesman, and one of the very few men in the nation to whom we should be a great many papers from the South, and, so far as we have observed, there is not one of them all that does not appland his general policy and gather high hope from it. Certainly he is fast bringing about throughout the South that stat of feeling upon which alone we must rely for future union and harmony.

ger It is said that most of those just elected to congress in Virginia will refuse to take the test cath that is, the oath which a law of Congress ordains as the condition of taking a real n that body. Very well, they can refuse if they choose, but their refusal can hart nobody except themselves and their State-and proba bly not the latter. Perhaps they calculate upon the law's being repealed before they make their PRATHER & SMITH'S appearance at Washington, but they had better not calculate thus. We should have no objection to its being repealed immediately, but the simple truth, we can assure them, is that it will not be repealed immediately. If they canno take the oath conscientionsly, or if their pride or their spirit of obduracy will not permit them to take it, they had no business to become elected, be required to swear before they could take their seats, and, if they were determined not to swear it, they committed a gross wrong in arking the people for their suffrages. Prob ably the people, if they have to elect over give their votes the next time. They wer bundantly admonished upon the point in question before the election.

KENTUCY UNIVERSITY. - The numerous friends of this institution throughout the Mississippi Valley will be gratified to learn that it has opened veral colleges at Lexington under the most flattering auspices. We understand that already about two hundred and twenty-five students have matriculated, and they are still We take pleasure in recommending this University as eminently worthy of the confidence of the public. Its rich endowment and its full and able corps of Professors enable it to fornish the highest advantages in the way of a liberal education. The large Interest which the State of Kentucky has in it ought to make every citizen feel a pride in its success. We also understand that many of the counties of the State are availing themselves of the liberal privilege provisions of the act of the Legislature establishing the Agricultural and Mechanical College as one of the colleges of this University. We hope every county in the State will be repreeented in it under this arrangement.

During the evening we will have the Christine Zavistowski Tronpe in Grand pas Seul, Pas de Deux, Pas de Trois, and Pas de ANOTHER MAN -We mentioned the other day that a man named Knox had his nose bitten off by his antagonist in a pug now-ous combat. The case (not the nose) was adjusted in the Police Court. Lest the myriad friends of 'Old Reliable" Captain Billy Knox, of the Lebanon Branch Railroad, should mietake him for the noseless individual, we assure them that Billy never inserted his noce between the dentals of any man or beast, and that the aforesaid organ nose its place and maintains it well.

LOUISVILLE THEATER .- Miss Leo Hudson, to whose administrative talent and personal eaterprise and industry we are indebted for the ad m irable entertainments at this Theater during the past few weeks, graces the boards herself this evening. Mise Hudson is unrivaled as the Frerch Spy, in which tragic character she appears to-right. The performances will conclude with the Lakes of Killarny, with the charming Mrs Claude Hamilton as the prominent figure in the fairy scene.

MINNESOTA POTATOES. - The Hon. J. P. Wright, of St. Paul, left with us on Saturday come white Irish potatoes, raised near that city. They weigh a pound and a half each, and Mr. W. informs us that some of the same kind have raised there weighing two and a half each. Minnesota must be fully equal in the big potato line. No. 211 Hain st., between Second and Third, Bign "GOLDEN HORSE-HEAD." DR. McCLELLAND

To the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 The Weitz Military C. mmlssion reassembled to-day. Judge Adveate Chipman made some remarks exempating Dr. Mudd from the charges made against him by witness Dilby yesterday that he (Mudd), in two Instances, relieved his thumbs from the atterles of prisoners, so as to allow the blood to spirt, in the face of the doctor assisting him, and laughed at it as if it was something funny. It was not his (Chipman's) intention, nor that of the Conrt, to attach blame too improperly to anybody.

Col. Chipman then offered in evidence the consolidated returns of the Anderson ville prison, dated September 11, 1864, with the view of removing the idea that Wertz was absent during Weilington, 42d New York Vols., testifie hat he was a prisoner both at Belle Isle an Andersonville. The latter was better than th ndersonville. The latter was better than the armer. The prisoners carried with him from telle lele were sick and some died on the way. he rations at Audersonville became smaller as he number of prisoners lacroased. The hread was bad and burned on the outside, and raw was bad and buined on the outside, and raw within; prisoners sometimes ate it and some threw it away. The camp was improved after he arrived; for two or three mouths were using pine benghs. There was a general count of the pileohers: after the prisoners on the north side had teen connted they were dismissed to their quanters, but instead of proceeding thither they went to the countside. The consequence was that the rations were stopped till the count could be lixed correctly; otherwise from 1.700 to 2,000 more rations would be required. Capt. Westz sald to those who spoke to him on the nelject. 'You know why I stopped the rations, I was obliged to do it.' Some of the prisoners had a small supply of rations from the day beand a small supply of rations from the day before.

Witness never heard of Werlz assaulting the prisoners—Wertz appealed to the prisoners to help enlarge the blockade so as to give them ten feet instead of four.

During the proceedings Mr. Baker made some remarks, to which Colonel Chipman replied that the counsel had assumed as facts that which was not true. Mr. Baker said that if the truth did not show the facts as he had staled them he would not ask another question. Col. Chipman said the burden was on the counsel to show it. Mr. Baker said the Government had refused to abpeau Mr. Bowles. Col. Chipman said that was laise.

General Wallace here interposed, and said this centroversy must cease.

Mr. Baker—If I am allowed the same privilege that the Government is.

Gen. Wallace—You have been ordered to go on with the examination of the witness.

Mr. Baker—I do not disobey the order of the Court.

Curt.
The breeze here subsided, and the Commis don was resumed.

Mr. Baker said he wanted to show that Winder and Werz were not guilty of conspiracy.

The Court enstained Col. Chipman's objective. Mr. Baker then offered in evidence a copy of the proceedings and sentence of the continential which tried the raiders, and which were approved by Gen Winder. It was not in his power to produce the originals, which were lost or destroyed. This record would remove runch of the blame which had been cast upon Winder, and was altogether favorable to the deferdant.

Winder, and was altogether favorable to the defendunt.
Col. Chijuman objected, and the Court sustained the expection.
Col. Chijuman here rested the case for the presention, and said that the Court had never dielded that the witnesses Lee, Johnston, and Cobb could not be brought here.
Mr. Baker said that whatever had passed here of a personal nature he would let it go fle would not here or outside again refer to it. The Jucge Advecate had personally treated him with kindness, but had treated the case of the defendant rather roughly. He then rested the case for the prisoner.
The Court said both sides have rosted. Mr. Baker is to sum up in behalf of the prisoner, and the Judge Advocate for the prosecution. Both arguments are to be in writing. The Court acjourned till Wednesday, to give the control time to prepare the arguments.
